How many teams will qualify?

The success of the first 24-team UEFA European Championship – UEFA EURO 2016 – vindicated UEFA's decision to broaden the net for the final tournament, and 24 sides will be involved again at UEFA EURO 2020. There will be no automatic qualifiers, however, with all the nations with host cities required to earn their place at the finals.

The European Qualifiers – running from March to November 2019 – will send 20 competitors to the tournament, namely the top two teams in each of the ten qualifying groups. Four more countries will qualify via the new UEFA Nations League, with the decisive play-offs to be staged in March 2020.

A EURO with 13 host cities

The EURO final tournament in 2020 will be brought to all four corners of the continent, as a one-off celebration of its 60th anniversary.

UEFA did not pursue this innovative idea alone. It conducted a comprehensive consultation process, especially with its member associations, and the feedback received was extremely welcoming. The outcome was the presentation of a concrete proposal to UEFA's Executive Committee in December 2012 and the idea of a pan-European EURO 2020 became a reality.

To be a true European experience, it was essential for the tournament to be staged from North to South, and East to West. Following a bidding and selection process, thirteen cities from each part of the continent – from St Petersburg to Bilbao, from Dublin to Baku – are now all looking forward to playing host to the tournament in four years' time.

Eight of these thirteen host cities will be savouring something they had never done before, and will have the chance to stage matches in a European Championship final tournament.

With 13 cities hosting final tournament matches, it will give fans in all such countries a wonderful opportunity to share the EURO experience on their home soil.

- Bridge on the logo: Cirkelbroen

The bridge "Cirkelbroen" is an artistic landmark for Copenhagen. The bridge designed by artist Olafur Eliasson opened in August 2015 and is a present from Nordea-fonden to the City of Copenhagen. Based on the Christianshavn district's maritime history and culture, Olafur Eliasson used the sailing boat as the visual point of departure for the design of Cirkelbroen. Cirkelbroen is a pedestrian bridge that makes it easier for residents to walk, jog and cycle along the inner waterfront. Around 5,000 cyclists and pedestrians cross the bridge on a daily basis. The bridge is roughly 40 metres long with a water-clearance height of 2.25 metres when closed. The total length of the rotating part is around 25 metres long. The name “Cirkelbroen” (the Circle Bridge) arises from its shape: five differently-sized circular platforms, each with its own ‘mast’.
